JERRY KLEIN IS HURT WHEN CARS COLLIDE SUNDAY

WISCONSIN RAPIDS MAN SUFFERS PAINFUL INJURIES IN COLLISION WITH POINT MACHINE ON ROUTE 10

Two cars were badly damaged, one person was injured and another less seriously hurt in a collision a quarter of a mile south of Springville Pond on state trunk highway No. 10 at eleven o'clock Sunday night. The wrecked machines were left on the road all night and were towed away this morning.

The collision occurred between a Buick touring car driven by Albert Wood of Almond who was enroute to Stevens Point, and a Ford coupe driven by Jerry Klein of Wisconsin Rapids, who was on his way to his home in this city.

Arthur Valentine of Almond, an occupant of the back seat of the Wood car, suffered cuts on his head when he was thrown against the windshield. Klein lost a front tooth in the clash.

Were Returning Home

Wood and Valentine, accompanied by two young women were driving to Stevens Point after spending the day in Wisconsin Rapids.

According to Wood, he noticed the other car approaching on his side of the road and just before the clash occurred, swung over to the left side of the highway in an effort to avoid being struck. Klein who was driving south is said to have assumed responsibility for the accident, according to a garage man who was sent to Springville from Wisconsin Rapids.

Klein Painfully Hurt

Klein, who was driving alone when the accident occurred was reported at his home, 1877 Baker street to be confined to his bed suffering from painful injuries to the head. His version of the accident could not be obtained.

The Buick was a total wreck. The radiator was crushed in, the bumper broken off, headlights smashed, fenders bent and broken from running hard on right side.

The Ford received a broken fender right side, wheels broken, one of them bent underneath the car, and the radiator was damaged.

The accident occurred on a stretch of highway which has been the scene of a number of smash-ups the past several months.

Foresters Elect Officers

At the meeting of the Catholic Foresters at Brazeau's Hall Sunday evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Chief Ranger, F. X. Grode; Vice Chief Ranger, F. J. Korbal; Recording Secretary, A. Zurfluh; Financial Secretary, Louis Wipfli; Treasurer, J. P. Nash; Speaker, August Buehler; Trustee, Ed. Goodness; Conductor, S. Kaja; Inner Sentinel, Frank Kaja; Outer Sentinel, August Smith.

It was decided to serve a lunch at the first meetings of every month to be followed by an entertainment.

16 Admitted To Citizenship; Two Denied Papers

Sixteen applicants for citizenship were admitted in circuit court Monday afternoon before Judge Byron B. Park.

On motion of Geo. N. Danielson, U. S. Naturalization Examiner, the petitions of Michael Rusez of Nekoosa and Charley Muehlbauer of Marshfield were dismissed. The former claimed examption from military service during the war on account of his alienage and the latter is now a fugitive from justice.

Mr. Danielson announced in court today that the wives of all aliens naturalized today are not naturalized with them as heretofore but will have to file petitions for second papers.

The hearings for Joseph Stoler and Louis Rakita were continued due to the absence of the applicants from the hearing.

The following are those who became United States citizens today: Ole Marks, William H. C. Crossland, Adam W. Hupfel, Knute Wasrum, Alfred Stengl, Arthur M. Smith, Frank Schalock, August Wittenberg, Hans Torgerson Nessa, Alois F. Stauber, Peter Pintok, August F. F. Kell, Anton Sumrak, Herman H. Klusman and Louis Lemke.

Kellner Men May Try Farm Bureau Marketing Plan

The American Farm Bureau plan for the cooperative marketing of potatoes was outlined by John Rigton of Nelsonville, a representative of the bureau, at a well attended meeting of the Kellner Coy Ban and Potato Growers' association at Kellner Saturday evening.

The plan was well received, and a special committee consisting of Reinhold timm Axel Peterson, Wm. Radomski, Charles Turbin, and Henry Plahmer, was named to look into warehouse facilities and to investigate the advisability of establishing the bureau plan at Kellner. The secretary of the bureau is expected at Kellner next week to assist in the carrying out of the work.

The American Farm Bureau has taken over the North American Fruit Growers Exchange, and now has offices in all of the principal cities of the country through which it keeps in direct touch with buyers. It has been the experience in other communities that the bureau has been able to obtain better prices for growers of fruits and vegetables than the producers can get selling independently.

FREIGHT MOVING DESPITE STRIKE OF LAKE SEAMEN

REPORT INDICATE ALL VESSELS MOVING ON SCHEDULE TIME IN SPITE OF ANNOUNCED WALKOUT BY MEN

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2—The strike of the Great Lakes seamen, started Saturday midnight, has failed to tie up freight in Chicago and Southern Chicago district, operators here announced at noon today. Reports from other points, he said, showed all vessels sailing on schedule time.

Four 10,000 ton grain and ore vessels left here yesterday. Thee 11,000 ton vessels sailed today and three more 10,000 ton vesesls were loading preparatory to clearing before 6:00 p. m.

Railroad embargoes on coal shipments to lake ports are not due to the sailors strike, ship owners stated here, but that all available railroad cars have been loaded with coal and the roads are unable to move fast enough to get empty cars for the mines.

Site Of Old Wisconsin River Trading Post Is State Park

Tower Hill, Wis., Oct. 2—The Jenkin Lloyd Jones state park was accepted by the state and dedicated yesterday with exercises conducted on the site of the old shot tower which played an important part in the early history of Wisconsin river trade.

This area, donated by Mrs. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, includes the former site of Helena, a flourishing early Wisconsin town that lived off the lumbering and shot trade conducted along the Wisconsin river from 1830 to 1860. The park possesses pleasant scenic attractions and an abundance of historic interest, described by Joseph Schafer, secretary of the state historical society.

Park for Al lthe People

Gov. J. J. Blaine accepting the new park on behalf of the state said that the area typified his ideal of a public park adding that "it is my hope to see the adoption of a plan for public parks that will involve the location of accessible tracts, not necessarily of large acreage but usable areas in the localities of the populous sections of the state, and extending that system as rapidly as possible as the population develops.

"Here wholesome recreation may be obtained free from cost," he continued, "with the possibility of a reasonable expense in going to and from the several places of recreation. Large and inaccessible tracts of land affording recreation for only the well-to-do do not meet the problem."

Outlines Park Plan

The governor in his talk which followed that of Miss Zona Gale, Portage outlined a plan of state park development which he said should be carried out in Wisconsin.

"There should be a well developed plan, along lines that will afford parks for the masses of the state, rather than to establish areas that will never be utilized by the masses within our time or the time of innumerable succeeding generations," Governor Blaine declared.

Speaking of the Tower Hill park, he said that "this tract is but one of scores of beauty spots in the state. We have innumerable tracts of land all over the state, possessing wonderful scenic beauty, small in area and accessible both as to distance, convenience and expense to the masses. The state might well afford to enter upon a program of acquiring these tracts, either through gift or purchase, with due consideration to the burden imposed.

"This park today accepted and dedicated will no doubt be popularly known as Tower Hill. It was so known by Jenkin Lloyd Jones. I trust hereafter that it will be officially known, at least, as the Jenkin Lloyd Jones State park at Tower Hill, in honor of the citizen and in recognition of his unselfish devotion to democracy at home, and to democracy as well, unrimmed by territorial boundaries, language or creed, and to a democracy everywhere.

"In behalf of the state of Wisconsin and her people, I tender to Mrs. Jenkin Lloyd Jones a sincere gratitude for her generosity in making possible the acquisition of this park by the state."

POPULARITY VOTE COUNTERS BURIED BY BALLOT FLOOD

MISS MARY HERRON HAS BIG LEAD, BUT DEFINITE RESULT WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL TOMORROW

Snowed under by hundreds of thousands of ballots that came pouring in before the close of the voting Saturday afternoon, the committee in charge of the counting of the votes in the Bridge Queen popularity contest worked late Saturday night and all day Sunday without completing the job. Ballots carring millions of votes are still uncounted, and the final returns will not be known until tomorrow.

Miss Mary Herron, in the returns tabulated up until 2 o'clock this afternoon, is leading by a margin of over 1,000,000 votes, and it is not considered likely that her plurality will be wiped out in the final returns. Miss Mildred Bossert is second with close to 2,000,000 votes, and Miss Eva Manka third, has over a million.

Millions of Votes Cast

Twenty-three candidates have over 100,000 votes so far, and with the total already well beyond the 10,000,000 mark, it is expected that the final tally will show a total of close of 15,000,000 votes cast.

The standing of the candidates, as shown by the partial count of the ballots, is as follows:

Miss Mary Herron	3,106,120

Sixteen Candidates Admitted To Local Aerie F. O. Eagles

A class of sixteen local men were initiated in Wisconsin Aerie No. 373, F. O. Eagles at a special initiation held at the Amusement Hall Sunday. The Wausau drill team, which is regarded as the best in the state and which took second place at the National Eagles Convention last year, performed the work. Local men joining the lodge yesterday were A. C. Sierck, John V. Boyer, William Bodett, Harold Goodwin, Leslie Geedwin, Carl W. Schuler, Paul Bulgrin, Charles S. Parker, George J. Kellner, C. F. Rosenberger, Merrill Fanning, Elmer L. Zeaman, Arthur M. Eswine, George Morzynski, A. J McGrath and Delbert Meddaugh.

Following the initiatory work, the visiting Eagles were given a short ride about the city. A banquet was served at the Eagles Hall on Second street north which was attended by about two hundred lodge members. A brief program was held which was presider over by the Worthy President, Chief A. C. Miller. Roy Chellis, state Deputy Grand Worthy President gave an interesting and inspiring address on The Eagles and Fraternalism. The local lodge has a wide membership in this city and community and is preparing for a membership drive to greatly increase its rolls.

The annual Fall festivities in Kansas City, known as the Priests of Pallas carnival, will be opened today and continued through the week.

Hold Cooperative Dairy Marketing Concern Illegal

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis. Oct. 2—The Milk Producers Cooperative Association of America, holding contracts with 4500 southern Wisconsin farmers for the disposal of their milk, is illegally doing business in this state, Alvin Reis, assistant attorney general, attached to the Department of Markets, advised the company officers and hundreds of farmers here at the opening of the commission hearing on complaint from Illinois marketing concerns.

Contracts of the company are void, its representative subject to prosecution for violation of the Wisconsin cooperative law and farmers of this state due to lose through their connection with its affairs, Mr. Reis declared.

GHASTLY TALE OF TURK ATROCITIES TOLD BY WITNESS

CHRISTIAN REFUGEES LITERALLY CROWDED INTO THE SEA BY SOLDIERS, AMERICAN WOMAN SAYS

Constantinople, Oct. 2—Cries of refugees of Smyrna for water and food are met by the Turk's lash, Dr. Esther Lovejoy of New York, president of the American Women's Hospital who has just returned here after a week's survey in the stricken city.

Dr. Lovejoy declared that the world has not been told the real story of fire and horror.

Pushed Into Water

"There are still several hundred Christians in Smyrna and interior whose lives are imperiled, for the time limit of the evacuation has expired," she said. "Crowds on the quay are so great that some of them are pushed into the sea. Women stand waist deep in the water, holding their babes aloft so that they will not drown.

"Turkish soldiers are systematically robbing the men and wrenching rings from the women. They gladly give up their valuables if robbing can purchase life.

Attack Women

"At night Turkish soldiers commit excesses upon women and girls. Only when search lights from the ships are turned upon them do they stop. In the interior, refugees are packed in thousands in front of the American consulate.

"There are more than a hundred mothers who gave birth to babes Some were delivered while standing I attended many. Some of the infants died within an hour, from exposure, but the mothers clung pitifully to the bodies of the little ones.

"One of the officers," said Doctor Lovejoy," "witnessed a Greek woman cut her throat and then hurl herself into the water and drown. The Americans at home could not begin to visualize the terrible enguish of the refugees. Their loved ones are torn from them—children being separated from their mothers, and fathers sent into the interior."

Wood County Grocery Co. To Hold Annual Convention

Several hundred retail grocers from throughout central Wisconsin, and travelling men handling grocery lines, will meet in this city Wednesday and Thursday of this week for the annual convention and stock holders meting of the Wood County Grocery Company.

The anual meeting of stockholders will be held Thursday, and will wind up with a banquet at the Hotel Witter at 6:45. The opening day will be devoted to exhibits of grocery products by visiting salesmen at the company's building on the West Side market square.

EXPECT MUDANIA MEETING TO OPEN PATH FOR PEACE

BRITISH AND TURKISH REPRESENTATIVES WILL MEET IN PARLEY TOMORROW; SITUATION IS BRIGHTER.

(By Associated Press)

Constantinople, Oct. 2—An immediate mutual agreement to suspend all movements of troops was expected here today to be the first step of the Mudania armistice conference at its meeting tomorrow.

War Peril Lessened

Constantinople, Oct. 2—With the armistice conference definitely fixed for tomorrow at Mudania, the peril of war between Great Britain and Turkey appears less menacing today.

Great Britain's recession from the neutral zone controversy caused no little surprise and disappointment here, while it was generally admitted that this step was the only thing which could have stopped Mustapha Kemal Pasha's attack.

It is pointed out as another evidence of England's earnest desire to avoid war.

British Tact Saved Day

Up to the time of the issuance of Brigadier General Harington's temporizing note Saturday night, the situation was considered menacing. It is conceded that his tact and tolerance, coupled with the timely arrival of reenforcements from England prevented the Turks from attacking Chanak.

Saturday morning the Turkish forces were increased by 1500 cavalry men and everything indicated the beginning of a hostile move.

Supports New King

Athens, Greece, Oct. 2—King Constantine, in talking with friends before embarking for Palermo, Sicily where he is to make his home, made a plea that hearty support be given the king and queen.

He added, "I have had some unhappy days and do not regret this revolution." He expressed the wish to return later as a simple citizen and visit his son, the new king.

Nationalists Approve

London, Oct. 2—Turkish nationalists assembled at Angora have unanimously approved the action of Mustapha Kemal Pasha and have appointed representatives to go to Mudania and later to the peace conference, according to a central news dispatch from Constantinople.

Cross Thrace Border

Constantinople, Oct. 2—A band of 800 Turkish irregulars crossed the border of Thrace at Sinekli, northwest of Silivri four miles west of here and attacked the Greek outposts, who were being forced to withdraw when reinforcements arrived and the Turks were thrown back across the boundary.

American Destroyers Sail

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 2—American destroyers ordered to the Near East "to protect American interests" started today on their voyage to the Mediterranean.

Believe Wausau H. S. Lads Victims of Friendly "Holdups"

The local police were notified of a holdup, which Chief of Police R. S. Payne believes should go in the "alleged holdup" category. Saturday night three Wausau H. S. lads who accompanied the football team to this city attempted to board a freight train, northbound on the St. Paul road, when they were "stuck up" by three men with hats pulled over their eyes in regular bandit style. After taking in $3.40 and a watch the bandits returned the valuables and the grateful victims voted 40c to the "thugs" for a meal. The victims reported their experience to the local police. Chief Payne declares the "holdup" was the work of other Wausau students who were a part of the large party of rooters at the game here Saturday.

JERRY KLEIN IS HURT WHEN CARS COLLIDE SUNDAY

WISCONSIN RAPIDS MAN SUFFERS PAINFUL INJURIES IN COLLISION WITH POINT MACHINE ON ROUTE 10.

Two cars were badly damaged, one person was injured and another less seriously hurt in a collision a quarter of a mile south of Springville Pond on state trunk highway No. 10 at eleven o'clock Sunday night. The wrecked machines were left on the road all night and were towed away this morning.

The collision occurred between a Buick touring car driven by Albert Wood of Almond who was enroute to Stevens Point, and a Ford coupé driven by Jerry Klein of Wisconsin Rapids, who was on his way to his home in this city.

Arthur Valentine of Almond, an occupant of the back seat of the Wood car, suffered cuts on his head when he was thrown against the windshield. Klein lost a front tooth in the clash.

Were Returning Home

Wood and Valentine, accompanied by two young women were driving to Stevens Point after spending the day in Wisconsin Rapids.

According to Wood, he noticed the other car approaching on his side of the road and just before the clash occurred, swung over to the left side of the highway in an effort to avoid being struck. Klein who was driving south is said to have assumed responsibility for the accident, according to a garage man who was sent to Springville from Wisconsin Rapids.

Klein Painfully Hurt

Klein, who was driving alone when the accident occurred was reported at his home, 1877 Baker street to be confined to his bed suffering from painful injuries to the head. His version of the accident could not be obtained.

The Buick was a total wreck. The radiator was crushed in, the bumper broken off, headlights smashed, fenders bent and broken from running hard on right side.

The Ford received a broken fender right side, wheels broken, one of them bent underneath the car, and the radiator was damaged.

The accident occurred on a stretch of highway which has been the scene of a number of smash-ups the past several months.

Sixteen Candidates Admitted To Local Aerie F. O. Eagles

A class of sixteen local men were initiated in Wisconsin Aerie No. 373, F. O. Eagles at a special initiation held at the Amusement Hall Sunday. The Wausau drill team, which is regarded as the best in the state and which took second place at the National Eagles Convention last year, performed the work. Local men joining the lodge yesterday were A. C. Sierck, John V. Boyer, William Bodett, Harold Goodwin, Leslie Geedwin, Carl W. Schuler, Paul Bulgrin, Charles S. Parker, George J. Kellner, C. F. Rosenberger, Merrill Fanning, Elmer L. Zeaman, Arthur M. Eswine, George Morzynski, A. J McGrath and Delbert Meddaugh.

Following the initiatory work, the visiting Eagles were given a short ride about the city. A banquet was served at the Eagles Hall on Second street north which was attended by about two hundred lodge members. A brief program was held which was presider over by the Worthy President, Chief A. C. Miller. Roy Chellis, state Deputy Grand Worthy President gave an interesting and inspiring address on The Eagles and Fraternalism. The local lodge has a wide membership in this city and community and is preparing for a membership drive to greatly increase its rolls.

The annual Fall festivities in Kansas City, known as the Priests of Pallas carnival, will be opened today and continued through the week.

Hold Cooperative Dairy Marketing Concern Illegal

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis. Oct. 2.—The Milk Producers Cooperative Association of America, holding contracts with 4500 southern Wisconsin farmers for the disposal of their milk, is illegally doing business in this state, Alvin Reis, assistant attorney general, attached to the Department of Markets, advised the company officers and hundreds of farmers here at the opening of the commission hearing on complaint from Illinois marketing concerns.

Contracts of the company are void, its representative subject to prosecution for violation of the Wisconsin cooperative law and farmers of this state due to lose through their connection with its affairs, Mr. Reis declared.

GHASTLY TALE OF TURK ATROCITIES TOLD BY WITNESS

CHRISTIAN REFUGEES LITERALLY CROWDED INTO THE SEA BY SOLDIERS, AMERICAN WOMAN SAYS

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—Cries of refugees of Smyrna for water and food are met by the Turk's lash, Dr. Esther Lovejoy of New York, president of the American Women's Hospital who has just returned here after a week's survey in the stricken city.

Dr. Lovejoy declared that the world has not been told the real story of fire and horror.

Pushed Into Water

"There are still several hundred Christians in Smyrna and interior whose lives are imperiled, for the time limit of the evacuation has expired," she said. "Crowds on the quay are so great that some of them are pushed into the sea. Women stand waist deep in the water, holding their babes aloft so that they will not drown.

"Turkish soldiers are systematically robbing the men and wrenching rings from the women. They gladly give up their valuables if robbing can purchase life.

Attack Women

"At night Turkish soldiers commit excesses upon women and girls. Only when search lights from the ships are turned upon them do they stop. In the interior, refugees are packed in thousands in front of the American consulate.

"There are more than a hundred mothers who gave birth to babes. Some were delivered while standing I attended many. Some of the infants died within an hour, from exposure, but the mothers clung pitifully to the bodies of the little ones.

"One of the officers," said Doctor Lovejoy," "witnessed a Greek woman cut her throat and then hurl herself into the water and drown. The Americans at home could not begin to visualize the terrible enguish of the refugees. Their loved ones are torn from them—children being separated from their mothers, and fathers sent into the interior."

Wood County Grocery Co. To Hold Annual Convention

Several hundred retail grocers from throughout central Wisconsin, and travelling men handling grocery lines, will meet in this city Wednesday and Thursday of this week for the annual convention and stock holders meting of the Wood County Grocery Company.

The anual meeting of stockholders will be held Thursday, and will wind up with a banquet at the Hotel Witter at 6:45. The opening day will be devoted to exhibits of grocery products by visiting salesmen at the company's building on the West Side market square.

EXPECT MUDANIA MEETING TO OPEN PATH FOR PEACE

BRITISH AND TURKISH REPRESENTATIVES WILL MEET IN PARLEY TOMORROW: SITUATION IS BRIGHTER.

(By Associated Press)

Constantinople, Oct. 2—An immediate mutual agreement to suspend all movements of troops was expected here today to be the first step of the Mudania armistice conference at its meeting tomorrow.

War Peril Lessened

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—With the armistice conference definitely fixed for tomorrow at Mudania, the peril of war between Great Britain and Turkey appears less menacing today.

Great Britain's recession from the neutral zone controversy caused no little surprise and disappointment here, while it was generally admitted that this step was the only thing which could have stopped Mustapha Kemal Pasha's attack.

It is pointed out as another evidence of England's earnest desire to avoid war.

British Tact Saved Day

Up to the time of the issuance of Brigadier General Harington's temporizing note Saturday night, the situation was considered menacing. It is conceded that his tact and tolerance, coupled with the timely arrival of reenforcements from England prevented the Turks from attacking Chanak.

Saturday morning the Turkish forces were increased by 1500 cavalry men and everything indicated the beginning of a hostile move.

Supports New King

Athens, Greece, Oct. 2.—King Constantine, in talking with friends before embarking for Palermo, Sicily, where he is to make his home, made a plea that hearty support be given the king and queen.

He added, "I have had some unhappy days and do not regret this revolution." He expressed the wish to return later as a simple citizen and visit his son, the new king.

Nationalists Approve

London, Oct. 2—Turkish nationalists assembled at Angora have unanimously approved the action of Mustapha Kemal Pasha and have appointed representatives to go to Mudania and later to the peace conference, according to a central news dispatch from Constantinople.

Cross Thrace Border

Constantinople, Oct. 2—A band of 800 Turkish irregulars crossed the border of Thrace at Sinekli, northwest of Silivri, four miles west of here and attacked the Greek outposts, who were being forced to withdraw when reinforcements arrived and the Turks were thrown back across the boundary.

American Destroyers Sail

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 2—American destroyers ordered to the Near East, "to protect American interests" started today on their voyage to the Mediterranean.

Believe Wausau H. S. Lads Victims of Friendly "Holdups"

The local police were notified of a holdup, which Chief of Police R. S. Payne believes should go in the "alleged holdup" category. Saturday night three Wausau H. S. lads who accompanied the football team to this city attempted to board a freight train, northbound on the St. Paul road, when they were "stuck up" by three men with hats pulled over their eyes in regular bandit style. After raking in $3.40 and a watch the bandits returned the valuables and the grateful victims voted 40c to the "thugs" for a meal. The victims reported their experience to the local police. Chief Payne declares the "holdup" was the work of other Wausau students who were a part of the large party of rooters at the game here Saturday.

A GAIN FROM WAR

There is a bright side to the ledger of war. The boll weevil, curse of the cotton industry, will be exterminated, according to Brigadier General Ames A. Fries of the army chemical warfare section, by the use of poison gas.

What toll the weevil takes is little realized by those not concerned with cotton. Millions of dollars a year measure the losses. One third of the potenal crop was ruined in 1921, it was estimated.

Poisen gas is finding a good peacetime employment, too, in the extermination of rats, gopher and other rodents, destroyers of crops and carriers of disease.

The army engineers in the Phillippines are exterminating the locust pests by use of poison gas.

These facts are encouraging. High time it was that some good should be seen in return from the evils we suffered in the war. The sacrifices of our country were in dollars and cents, just as the gain in industry thru the use of poison gas will be. But there was a greater sacrifice, an incalculable one. That was the loss of human life. And this can never be repaid. The score still is heavy against the relic of barbarism, war.

UNHEEDED WARNINGS

"Vesuvius will be in a state of active eruption within two or three years," says Parofessor Henry S. Washington of the Carnegie Institute, who has just returned from Italy. "When I left Naples, the crater of the volcano had filled up from a depth of 1,200 feet to within 300 feet of the rim."

Will this warning of impending disaster bring consternation to the inhabitants of the villages on the sides of Mt. Vesusius, causing them to flee to a place of safety while there is yet time? It will not. In spite of the fact that Vesuvius is the best advertised volcano in the world, and one of the most destructive, there are numerous towns and villages clustered around the base and on the sides of the mountain. Excavations at Pompeii have shown that not one city but a series have been buried beneath volcanic ashes at that spot.

Through ignorance or sheer inertia, thousands of people will continue to court disaster by living on the edge of the volcano. It is a habit which appears to be in instinct in the human race. Again and again in the world's history the great volcano of war has poured forth destruction upon the human race, yet it continues to dwell on the dangerous ground of hatred and suspicion and mutual antagonism.

Either some means must be found to extinguish the volcano, or the race must move forward a great deal.

SAYS STATE AND FEDERAL SYSTEMS MUST COOPERATE

MARSHALL COUSINS IN ADDRESS AT NEW YORK POINTS NEED OF CLOSE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN BANKS

New York, N. Y., Oct. 2—Close cooperation must be established between the state and federal systems of banking if nation-wide credit and trade is to be secured by thorough mobilization of reserve funds, ample currency supply and efficient supervision, Marshall Cousins, Wisconsin's commissioner of banking said in an address before the state division of the American Banking association in convention here today.

Mr. Cousins urged that congress and state legislatures enact laws which will place state and national banks in a closer relationship with each other. He stressed, during his address, the importance of the small country bank in financing local projects and emphasized the responsibility that the larger city banks have in backing up the country institutions.

Must Finance Marketing

"One of the great problems confronting the banks annually is that of financing the agricultural operations during the growing season and the marketing of crops," Mr. Cousins said. "Without cooperation all along the line this would be exceedingly difficult of accomplishment.

"It is to the country bank that these devoting their attention to agricultural pursuits first turn. The neighborhood bank must furnish the funds needed during the growing season and must finance the moving of the crops. It would indeed be a problem for these small and most necessary institutions, could they not depend upon the larger banking institutions in the commercial centers for assistance.

Two Systems Needed

"There is a place in our commercial life for national banks and a place for state banks. The existence of two systems is a safeguard and a check upon Congress and the state legislatures, and the public is accordingly protected and benefited.

"From practical experience in both states and national banks, I can see but little difference between them. They are all organized for the same service. There should be no friction between the banks of the two systems. It is for their own good and the public good that there should be cooperation."

CAVEMAN LOVER THING OF PAST

OLD TIME KNOCK 'EM DOWN AND DRAG 'EM OUT TYPE STANDS NO CHANCE WITH CHICAGO FAIR SEX

Chicago—The old-time caveman idea of a perfect lover has been supplanted by the modern version of "Faint Heart Always Wins Fair Lady," now in feminine favor along with bobbed hair, short skirt and rolled hose.

In the scenarios of 10,000 women submitted in a contest conducted by a large Chicago newspaper, the bashful here outnumbered the bold and fearless one eight to one, according to James Shrock, director of the competition.

"This was a revelation to the judges who were famous authors, directors, educators, dramatic critics and actors," he said. "They, with conventional literary opinions, believed women in real life worshipped the leonine, dashing, confident type of hero, choosing him for her husband when his assurance and possessive manner had captured her heart.

Prefer Bashful Lover

"But the stories showed unmistakably that women when given a chance to express their real likes and dislikes as they did in this contest, many of them writing under nom de plumes, prefer the stammering, wistful, abashed lover rather than the caveman type."

They were careful to draw the distinction between timidity and fear, Shrock said. The great majority of heroes were retiring in manners and backward in approach but brave in morals and, when aroused, courageous in physical combat.

This was attributed by some judges to the fact that women prefer being worshipped to being mastered. Others were of the opinion that this showed women want husbands who would be too bashful to flirt with other women. Shy men don't desert their wives, they said. Still others declared this signified woman's natural desire to mother and protect timorous men.

Car Shortage Threatens Wisconsin Stock Shippers

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2—Stock raisers and shippers in Wisconsin are confronted with a threatening situation due to a serious car shortage, F. V. Adams, traffic engineer of the railroad commission reported today.

Warning has just been sent to farmers throughout the state urging them to hold their livestock on the farms to prevent congestion at shipping points. Stock buyers who have purchased from farmers in many instances are reported to have a large number of animals on their hands which they are unable to move.

Interstate commerce commission service orders sending freight cars west to haul the year's grain crop and south to handle the fruit crops in addition to orders sending cars to coal mines are responsible for the shipping tie up, Mr. Adams says.

"Some people seem to be of the opinion that the railroad commission can make freight cars," the traffic engineer declared, comenting on request for cars that are flooding the department. "All we can do is to advise shippers of the seriousness of the situation and to inform themselves of car condition before shipping livestock."

Officials Promise Record Showing Of Blooded Stock

Hamline, Minn.—The largest group of pure-bred dairy cattle ever gathered will be displayed at the National Dairy Exposition to be held here October 7 to 14, when $35,130 in prizes will be offered, according to officials.

Cattle from the prize herds of large Wisconsin farms and other parts of America's dairy section will be exhibited at the exposition which sponsors declare will be the largest of its kind.

The United States Department of agriculture will cooperate with the exposition officials in turning Dairy Hall into a huge educational exhibit of dairy products and their uses.

Included in the hall's features will be the government exhibit, a model dairy kitchen directed by Mrs. Paul Hemming in which the uses of milk in the home kitchen will be demonstrated.

Show Market Service

Demonstration also will be made of the department's market report service, by radio, telegraph and mail, which is available to farmers, manufacturers, distributors and consumers.

The various cattle associations have assisted in raising the total of the prizes offered. In each of the five breed divisions $3,790 will be offered to the regular classes. In addition to this special prizes offered by individuals and organizations raises the total to much larger figures.

Boys' and Girls' calf clubs have been offered prizes amounting to $2,200 by the National Dairy Association, $440 being given to exhibitors in each class. In addition each of the breed associations is giving prizes in recognition of the work done by the clubs.

Quality—not Quantity

It's not how much oil you get for a dollar that counts, but how far it will go and how efficient service it will give. You can't afford to risk the ruinous wreckage wrought by carbon-laden oils for the sake of a few pennies per quart.

Nor can you safely take chances with oils that quickly break down from engine heat or dilution by the motor fuel that leaks into your crankcase.

IVALINE Motor Oil is made and sold on a quality first basis. It isn't weakened by over-refining. It is produced from the best paraffine base Eastern Crudes. It contains no grit, gums or acids and but a minimum of free carbon.

Its use means a smoother-running, more responsive motor, and a refreshing freedom from repair bills.

"But the stories showed unmistakably that women when given a chance to express their real likes and dislikes as they did in this contest, many of them writing under nom de plumes, prefer the stammering, wistful, abashed lover rather than the caveman type."

They were careful to draw the distinction between timidity and fear, Shrock said. The great majority of heroes were retiring in manners and backward in approach but brave in morals and, when aroused, courageous in physical combat.

This was attributed by some judges to the fact that women prefer being worshipped to being mastered. Others were of the opinion that this showed women want husbands who would be too bashful to flirt with other women. Shy men don't desert their wives, they said. Still others declared this signified woman's natural desire to mother and protect timorous men.

Car Shortage Threatens Wisconsin Stock Shippers

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—Stock raisers and shippers in Wisconsin are confronted with a threatening situation due to a serious car shortage, R. V. Adams, traffic engineer of the railroad commiceion reported today.

Warning has just been sent to farmers throughout the state urging them to hold their livestock on the farms to prevent congestion at shipping points. Stock buyers who have purchased from farmers in many instances are reported to have a large number of animals on their hands which they are unable to move.

Interstate commerce commision service orders sending freight cars west to haul the year's grain crop and south to handle the fruit crops in addition to orders sending cars to coal mines are responsible for the shipping tie up, Mr. Adams says.

"Some people seem to be of the opinion that the railroad commission can make freight cars," the traffic engineer declared, comenting on request for cars that are flooding the department. "All we can do is to advise shippers of the seriousness of the situation and to inform themselves of car condition before shipping livestock."

Officials Promise Record Showing Of Blooded Stock

Hamline, Minn.—The largest group of pure-bred dairy cattle ever gathered will be displayed at the National Dairy Exposition to be held here October 7 to 14, when $35,130 in prizes will be offered, according to officials.

Cattle from the prize herds of large Wisconsin farms and other parts of America's dairy section will be exhibited at the exposition which sponsors declare will be the largest of its kind.

The United States Department of agriculture will cooperate with the exposition officials in turning Dairy Hall into a huge educational exhibit of dairy products and their uses.

Included in the hall's features will be the government exhibit, a model dairy kitchen directed by Mrs. Paul Henming in which the uses of milk in the home kitchen will be demonstrated.

Show Market Service

Demonstration also will be made of the department's market report service, by radio, telegraph and mail, which is available to farmers, manufacturers, distributors and consumers.

The various cattle associations have assisted in raising the total of the prizes offered. In each of the five breed divisions $3,790 will be offered to the regular classes. In addition to this special prizes offered by individuals and organizations raises the total to much larger figures.

Boys' and Girls' calf clubs have been offered prizes amounting to $2,200 by the National Dairy Association, $440 being given to exhibitors in each class. In addition each of the breed associations is giving prizes in recognition of the work done by the clubs.

Quality—not Quantity

It's not how much oil you get for a dollar that counts, but how far it will go and how efficient service it will give. You can't afford to risk the ruinous wreckage wrought by carbon-laden oils for the sake of a few pennies per quart.

Nor can you safely take chances with oils that quickly break down from engine heat or dilution by the motor fuel that leaks into your crankcase.

IVALINE Motor Oil is made and sold on a quality first basis. It isn't weakened by over-refining. It is produced from the best paraffine base Eastern Crudes. It contains no grit, gums or acids and but a minimum of free carbon.

Its use means a smoother-running, more responsive motor, and a refreshing freedom from repair bills.

Ask your dealer to give you the grade of IVALINE which the common-sense IVALINE Guide shows your car or truck needs. If he hasn't IVALINE in stock, see our local agent and make sure of proper lubrication.

A 5-Year-Old WEIR is a Youth

A 10-Year-Old WEIR is In Its Prime

Many 30-Year-Olds are Still on the Job and Performing as Well as In the First Year

THOSE are facts that can all be proven by dozens of instances. The WEIR all-steel gas-and-soot-consuming furnace DOES stand up—and it does save coal every year of its life—and nothing but severe abuse will reduce that life to less than thirty years or more.

Any mechanical device, whether it be an automobile or a washing machine, can be so mistreated that it will not serve as long and faithfully as its maker intended. But that is not the fault of the machine or the maker.

WEIR furnaces, if given a chance, WILL LAST FOR THIRTY YEARS or MORE and SAVE COAL EVERY YEAR THEY ARE USED.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The reformed cracksman,
MICHAEL LANYARD, known to the police as the LONE WOLF, is attempting to recover the stolen jewels of EVE DE MONTALAIS, the woman he loves.

Lanyard, who met Eve in southern France, where he rescued her from robbery at the hands of the brutal Parisian Apache,
DUPONT, believes that the jewels were stolen by a motoring party consisting of the American,
WHITAKER MONK; his secretary,
PHINUIT; the latter's brother,
JULES, and the
COUNT and COUNTESS De LORGNES.

De Lorgnes is murdered by Dupont, and later, in Paris, Lanyard finds the countess. He learns that her real name is LIANE DELORME and believes she has the jewels.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

The Vampire and the Jewels

Lanyard left Athenais at her apartment and immediately followed her directions to the house of Liane.

It stood four-square and massive on a corner between the avenues de Friedland et des Champs-Elysees, a solid stone pile of a town-house in the most modern mode.

Heavy gates of wrought bronze guarded the front doors. The single side or service-door was similarly protected if more simply. And stout grilles of bronze barred every window on the level of the street.

Tomorrow night would be too late. Tonight, if there were any warrant for his suspicions, the jewels of Eve de Montalais lay in the dwelling of Liane Delorme: or if they were not there, the secret of their hiding was.

But tomorrow Liane would be on the wing; or Lanyard had been sorely mistaken in seeing in her as badly frightened a woman as he had ever known, when she had learned of the assassination of de Lorgnes.

He must adventure the consequences . . .

Poised to leave his shelter with his point of attack selected, he checked and fell back into the shadow. Something was happening in the house across the way.

A man had opened the service-door and paused behind the bronze gate.

Following a little wait, it swung slowly out, perhaps eighteen inches the man advancing with it and again halting to peer up and down the street. Then quickly, as if alarmed, he withdrew.

Listening intently, Lanyard heard no click of latch, such as should have been audible in that dead hour of hush. Evidently the fellow had neglected to make fast the gate. What was he up to? Why this furtive appearance, why the retreat so abruptly executed?

By way of answer came the soft drone of a high-powered motor.

Before the corner house it stopped. A lackey alighted with an umbrella but Liane Delorme would not wait for him. The car had not stopped when she threw the door open: on the instant when its wheels ceased to turn she jumped down and ran into the house.

Now if only it were true that the man at the service-door had failed to close it securely—!

It proved so. The gate gave readily to Lanyard's pull. The knob of the small door turned silently. He stepped across the threshold, and shut himself into an unlighted hall.

To one side a broad flight of stairs ascended: Lanyard went up with the activity of a cat, making no more noise.

The second floor proved to be devoted mainly to a drawing room, a lounge and a library, all furnished in a weird, inchoate sort of magnificence, with money rather than with taste, if one might judge fairly by the fitful and guarded beam of the torch.

Lights were burning on the floor above, and a rumor of feminine voices drifted down, interrupted by an occasional sibilant rustle of silk, or a brief patter of high-heeled feet: noises which bore out the conjecture that madame's maid was undressing and putting her to bed.

A change in the tenor of the talk between mistress and maid was conveyed by a sudden left of half an octave in the latter's voice, sounding a sharp note of protest, to be answered by Liane in accent of overbearing anger.

One simply could not rest without knowing what that meant. Lanyard mounted the second flight of stairs as swiftly, surely, and soundlessly as he had the first. Just below a landing he paused, crouching low, his head lifted just enough to permit him to see a section of glowing, rose-pink wall—it would be rose-pink!

He could see nothing more: and Liane had already reduced the maid to responses feebly submissive.

"And why should you not go with me to that America if I wish it?" Lanyard heard her say. "Is it likely I would leave you behind to spread scandal concerning me with that gabbling tongue in your head?"

"It is well, madame. I say no more. I will go."

"Fetch my jewel-case—the large one."

"Madame takes all her jewels, then?" the maid inquired, moving about the room.

"But naturally. I shall pack them tonight, before I sleep."

("Damnation!"—from Lanyard, beneath his breath. More delay!)

"And we leave tomorrow, madame, at what time?"

"It matters not, so we are in Cherbourg by midnight."

Lanyard slipped like a shadow to the floor below and took shelter behind a jog in the wall.

The maid came down, carrying an electric candle. Its rays illumined from below one of those faces of crude comeliness. She hesitated, looking up toward the room of her mistress, as if lost in thought.

But some secret thought amused the woman, a shadow deepened in the visible corner of her full-lipped mouth. One fancied something sardonic in that covert smile.

She went on down. Lanyard came out of hiding with a fresh enterprise in view.

Liane would be at least another half an hour busy with her jewelry, and the thought presented itself that the library, immediately beneath her room, should be worthy an investigation.

The library was furnished with bulky old Italian pieces of carved oak, but suitable enough with one exception, a ponderous buffet, completely out of place in a room of that character.

But—this drew a frowning stare—there was a key in the lock of the middle door.

"There's such a thing as too much

luck," Lanyard communed. "First the service gate and door, and now this, ready to my hand—!"

He swung sharply round and searched every shadow in the room with the glare of the portable lamp.

Placing the lamp on the floor and adjusting its hood so that it focused squarely upon the middle section of the buffet, he turned the key and discovered, behind the door, a small safe.

The combination dial was smug with ill-grounded confidence in its own inviolate integrity. Still (Lanyard told it) it could hardly be expected to know, it had yet to be dealt with by the shade of the Lone Wolf.

Amused by the conceit, Lanyard laid hold of the knob with steady, delicate fingertips that had not yet, in spite of years of honorable idleness, forgotten their cunning. The dial whirled, paused, reversed, turned all but imperceptibly. In three minutes he sat back on his heels, grasped the T-handle, turned it, had the satisfaction of hearing the bolts slide back into their sockets, and opened the door wide.

But the racked pigeonholes held nothing to interest him whose one aim was the recovery of the Montalais jewels. The safe was, in fact, dedicated simply to the storage of documents.

"Love letters!" Lanyard mused with a grimace of weariness. "And each believed, no doubt, she cared too much to compromise him. Good Lord! what vanity is man's!"

He selected a pigeonhole at hazard, and emptied it of several bundles of letter, all neatly bound with tape or faded ribbon and clearly docketed. His eye was caught by a great name endorsed on the face of one of the packages and reading what else was written there his brows rose high while his lips shaped a soundless whistle. Liane had kept such documents as gave her power over others. Lanyard wondered if it were possible he held in his hand an instrument to bend the woman to his will . . .

Suddenly he put out a hand and switched off the light, a gesture quite involuntary, simple reaction to the muffled thump of a chair overturned on the floor above.

Sounds of scuffling followed, as if Liane were dancing to no music with a heavy-footed partner. Then a groan . . .

His hand moved so rapidly and deftly that, although he seemed to rise without a second's delay, the safe was closed and the combination locked when he did so, the buffet door was shut and its key in his pocket.

This time Lanyard ascended the stairs without heeding what noise he made. Nevertheless his actions were never awkward or ill-timed: his approach was not heard, his arrival on the upper landing was unnoticed.

In an instantaneous pause he looked into the rose-pink room and saw Liane Delorme, in a negligee like a cobweb over a nightdress even more sheer, kneeling and clawing at her throat, round which a heavy silk handkerchief was slowly tightening; her face already purple with strangulation, her eyes bulging from their sockets, her tongue protruding between swollen lips.

A thick knee was planted between her shoulder-blades. The ends of the handkerchief were in the sinewy hands of Albert Dupont.

Nekoosa Society Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Zurfluh entertained a number of friends at a four course dinner at their home in honor of Miss Marie Heint, the occasion being her birthday. There were twenty guests present, and they enjoyed the evening with music and contests.

Beavers Meeting

J. W. Parsons of Antigo, grand commander of the Beavers, will be in Nekoosa this evening to initiate a class of candidates and to install the officers for the coming year. He will give a talk on the good of the order.

After the meeting lunch will be served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing.

A Good Word for Him.

Hans Schmidt was reported to be the meanest man in the neighborhood. He died. His body was placed in the grave, and, according to an old Pennsylvania German custom, the people stood around the open grave, waiting for someone to say some good thing about the deceased before filling the grave. After a long wait, Gustave Schulze said: "Well, I can say joost one goot thing about Hans: he wasn't always as mean as he was sometimes."

SCREENLAND ECHOES

by C. A. Meraman

The motion picture is today the greatest source of amusement which the American people have. Everywhere you go, there is a motion picture theater. The motion picture is an universal form of amusement. The Tribune hopes to stimulate the interest of the people in good motion pictures, in the higher class stars and to tell interesting sidelights about the stars. The demand of the public for good pictures comes after some education of the public about the good things in the movies. It will be a job well done if the public, with which the Tribune has contact, can demand the best talent for local exhibition and refuse patronage of the pictures which neither educate nor uplift. Some study will be made of the films of today and interesting information about the stars of filmdom and the characters they portray in film stories will be made in this column.

GRUWELL'S IDEAL THEATER

The very first thing we must say something about "The Bachelor Daddy" which the ladies of St. Katharine's Guild are showing at Gruwell's Ideal Theater tonight and tomorrow. The story is by Edward Peples who, as some of you no doubt remember, wrote "The Prince Chap" which was picturized some time ago with Tom Meighan as the star. We think this is one of the finest, most wholesome photoplays which has appeared for a long time and Tom Meighan is wonderfully good in it, but no better than Leatrice Joy and the five kiddies. It is not a pretentious picture from the staging angle but it is a picture which radiates happiness and helps all in seeing the finer and truer side of life—a real benefit to the community life.

"Romance Land" starring Tom Mix, takes that gentleman into, for him, a new and novel atmosphere. But he takes to it like a duck to water.

Did any of you see how Mae Tinee, the spitfire critic of the Chicago Tribune's movie department went into ecstacies over Metro's "Prisoner of Zenda," Rex Ingram's latest production. We have known Mae Tinee for ten years but never remember having her rave over any picture as she did over this one.

"Stroughart" the wonderful dog of "The Silent Call" is now starring in "Brawn of the North" under the First National Banner.

Katherine MacDonald, who will be remembered as the girl who won the prize offered by First National Exhibitors a couple of years ago, as the most beautiful woman in pictures, appears now in "White Shoulders," an adaptation of George Kibby Turner's popular story and the critics say she is fine in it. By the way how many of you know that Mary MacLaren is her sister.

Theda Bara, long time a famous Fox vamp is returning to the screen. She has been appearing on the speaking stage.

Jackie Coogan will produce independently after he completes "Oliver Twist" for Sol Lesser.

Mary Pickford is planning to make "Dorothy Vernon" soon and will employ an English playright to see that the atmosphere is properly "Henglish you knaw."

Wallace Beery is to be married soon. The girl is Rita Gilman, an artist's model. Wonder if Wallie will have better luck than Bill Hart did.

Mack Sennett is now working four companies. Mabel Normand, Ben Turpin, Phyllis Hayer and Billy Bevan head the four. Which would you rather work in?

PALACE THEATRE

Peal White, the celebrated Fox star—who bears the label "best known film actress in the world"— is due at the Palace theatre tonight only in her latest picture, entitled "Any Wife." The film was directed by Herbert Brenon, who stands in the very front rank in his field.

The story of "Any Wife" was written by Julia Tolsva. It deals with the case of a woman possessed of a devoted husband and a loving child, and surrounded by every material comfort; yet who surrenders to the spirit of discontent because she feels her life is too "humdrum"—lacking in social spice. This spirit, ever-increasing, leads her into an unfortunate situation as a result of which her husband casts her off, though she is really innocent.

Despite this apparent tragedy the story has a singularly happy ending, which comes as an absolute surprise.

We are sorry that we had Gloria Swanson in "Under The Lash" booked for only one day, as so many of you were turned away last night, that we could not seat. However she is coming again soon in a far bigger picture "The Gilded Cage" and we will see that you are all given ample opportunity to see her at that time.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kromer who were week end visitors of relatives in this city, left Monday for Minneapolis where they will spend a few days before returning to their home in Denver, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stamm and daughter Nancy Jean, arived Monday from Melonville N. Y. to make their future home in this city, Mr. Stamm having accepted a position at Port Edwards, with the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper Co.

The second floor proved to be devoted mainly to a drawing room, a lounge and a library, all furnished in a weird, inchoate sort of magnificence, with money rather than with taste, if one might judge fairly by the fitful and guarded beam of the torch.

Lights were burning on the floor above, and a rumor of feminine voices drifted down, interrupted by an occasional sibilant rustle of silk, or a brief patter of high-heeled feet; noises which bore out the conjecture that madame's maid was undressing and putting her to bed.

A change in the tenor of the talk between mistress and maid was conveyed by a sudden left of half an octave in the latter's voice, sounding a sharp note of protest, to be answered by Liane in accent of overbearing anger.

One simply could not rest without knowing what that meant: Lanyard mounted the second flight of stairs as swiftly, surely, and soundlessly as he had the first. Just below a landing he paused, crouching low, his head lifted just enough to permit him to see a section of glowing, rose-pink wall—it would be rose pink!

He could see nothing more; and Liane had already reduced the maid to response: feebly submissive.

"And why should you not go with me to that America if I wish it?" Lanyard heard her say. "Is it likely I would leave you behind to spread scandal concerning me with that babbling tongue in your head?"

"It is well, madame. I say no more. I will go."

"Fetch my jewel-case—the large one."

"Madame takes all her jewels, then?" the maid inquired, moving about the room.

"But naturally, I shall pack them tonight, before I sleep."

("Damnation!"—from Lanyard, beneath his breath. More delay!)

"And we leave tomorrow, madame, at what time?"

"It matters not, so we are in Cherbourg by midnight."

Lanyard slipped like a shadow to the floor below and took shelter behind a jog in the wall.

The maid came down, carrying an electric candle. Its rays illumined from below one of those faces of crude comeliness. She hesitated, looking up toward the room of her mistress, as if lost in thought.

But some secret thought amused the woman, a shadow deepened in the visible corner of her full-lipped mouth. One fancied something sardonic in that covert smile.

She went on down. Lanyard came out of hiding with a fresh enterprise abrew.

Liane would be at least another half an hour busy with her jewelry, and the thought presented itself that the library, immediately beneath her room, should be worthy an investigation.

The library was furnished with bulky old Italian pieces of carved oak, but suitable enough with one exception, a ponderous buffet, completely out of place in a room of that character.

But—this drew a frowning stare—there was a key in the lock of the middle door.

"There's such a thing as too much

luck," Lanyard commented. "First the service gate and door, and now this, ready to my hand—!"

He swung sharply round and searched every shadow in the room with the glare of the portable lamp.

Placing the lamp on the floor and adjusting its hood so that it focused squarely upon the middle section of the buffet, he turned the key and discovered, behind the door, a small safe.

The combination dial was smug with ill-grounded confidence in its own inviolate integrity. Still (Lanyard told it) it could hardly be expected to know, it had yet to be dealt with by the shade of the Lone Wolf.

Amused by the conceit, Lanyard laid hold of the knob with steady, delicate fingertips that had not yet, in spite of years of honorable idleness, forgotten their cunning. The dial whirled, paused, reversed, turned all but imperceptibly. In three minutes he sat back on his heels, grasped the T-handle, turned it, had the satisfaction of hearing the bolts slide back into their sockets, and opened the door wide.

But the racked pigeonholes held nothing to interest him whose one aim was the recovery of the Montalais jewels. The safe was, in fact, dedicated simply to the storage of documents.

"Love letters!" Lanyard mused with a grimace of weariness. "And each believed, no doubt, she cared too much to compromise him. Good Lord! what vanity is man's!"

He selected a pigeonhole at hazard, and emptied it of several bundles of letter, all neatly bound with tape or faded ribbon and clearly docketed. His eye was caught by a great name endorsed on the face of one of the packages; and reading what else was written there his brows rose high while his lips shaped a soundless whistle. Liane had kept such documents as gave her power over others. Lanyard wondered if it were possible he held in his hand an instrument to bend the woman to his will . . .

Suddenly he put out a hand and switched off the light, a gesture quite involuntary, simple reaction to the muffled thump of a chair overturned on the floor above.

Sounds of scuffling followed, as if Liane were dancing to no music with a heavy-footed partner. Then a groan . . .

His hand moved so rapidly and deftly that, although he seemed to rise without a second's delay, the safe was closed and the combination locked when he did so, the buffet door was shut and its key in his pocket.

This time Lanyard ascended the stairs without heeding what noise he made. Nevertheless his actions were never awkward or ill-timed; his approach was not heard, his arrival on the upper landing was unnoticed.

In an instantaneous pause he looked into the rose-pink room and saw Liane Delorme, in a negligee like a cobweb over a nightdress even more sheer, kneeling and clawing at her throat, round which a heavy silk handkerchief was slowly tightening; her face already purple with strangulation her eyes bulging from their sockets, her tongue protruding between swollen lips.

A thick knee was planted between her shoulder-blades. The ends of the handkerchief were in the sinewy hands of Albert Dupont.

Nekoosa Society Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Zurfluh entertained a number of friends at a four course dinner at their home in honor of Miss Marie Heint, the occasion being her birthday. There were twenty guests present, and they enjoyed the evening with music and contests.

Beavers Meeting

J. W. Parsons of Antigo, grand commander of the Beavers, will be in Nekoosa this evening to initiate a class of candidates and to install the officers for the coming year. He will give a talk on the good of the order.

After the meeting lunch will be served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing.

A Good Word for Him.

Hans Schmidt was reputed to be the meanest man in the neighborhood. He died. His body was placed in the grave, and, according to an old Pennsylvania German custom, the people stood around the open grave, waiting for someone to say some good thing about the deceased before filling the grave. After a long wait, Gustave Schulze said: "Well, I can say joost one goot thing about Hans: he wasn't always as mean as he was sometimes."

SCREENLAND ECHOES

by C. A. Meraman

The motion picture is today the greatest source of amusement which the American people have. Everywhere you go, there is a motion picture theater. The motion picture is an universal form of amusement. The Tribune hopes to stimulate the interest of the people in good motion pictures, in the higher class stars and to tell interesting sidelights about the stars. The demand of the public for good pictures comes after some education of the public about the good things in the movies. It will be a job well done if the public, with which the Tribune has contact, can demand the best talent for bead exhibition and refuse patronage of the pictures which neither educate nor uplift. Some study will be made of the films of today and interesting information about the stars of filmdom and the characters they portray in film stories will be made in this column.

GRUWELL'S IDEAL THEATER

The very first thing we must say something about "The Bachelor Daddy" which the ladies of St. Katharine's Guild are showing at Gruwell's Ideal Theater tonight and tomorrow. The story is by Edward Peples who, as some of you no doubt remember, wrote "The Prince Chap" which was picturized some time ago with Tom Meighan as the star. We think this is one of the finest, most wholesome photoplays which has appeared for a long time and Tom Meighan is wonderfully good in it, but no better than Leatrice Joy and the five kiddies. It is not a pretentious picture from the staging angle but it is a picture which radiates happiness and helps all in seeing the finer and truer side of life—a real benefit to the community life.

"Romance Land" starring Tom Mix, takes that gentleman into, for him, a new and novel atmosphere. But he takes to it like a duck to water.

Did any of you see how Mae Tinee, the spitfire critic of the Chicago Tribune's movie department went into ecstacies over Metro's "Prisoner of Zenda," Rex Ingram's latest production. We have known Mae Tinee for ten years but never remember having her rave over any picture as she did over this one.

"Stronghart" the wonderful dog of "The Silent Call" is now starring in "Brawn of the North" under the First National Banner.

Katherine MacDonald, who will be remembered as the girl who won the prize offered by First National Exhibitors a couple of years ago, as the most beautiful woman in pictures, appears now in "White Shoulders," an adaptation of George Kibby Turner's popular story and the critics say she is fine in it. By the way how many of you know that Mary MacLaren is her sister.

Theda Bara, long time a famous Fox vamp is returning to the screen. She has been appearing on the speaking stage.

Jackie Coogan will produce independently after he completes "Oliver Twist" for Sol Lesser.

Mary Pickford is planning to make "Dorothy Vernon" soon and will employ an English playright to see that the atmosphere is properly "Henglish you knaw."

Wallace Beery is to be married soon. The girl is Rita Gilman, an artist's model. Wonder if Wallie will have better luck than Bill Hart did.

Mack Sennett is now working four companies. Mabel Normand, Ben Turpin, Phyllis Hayer and Billy Bevan head the four. Which would you rather work in?

PALACE THEATRE

Peal White, the celebrated Fox star—who bears the label "best known film actress in the world"— is due at the Palace theatre tonight only in her latest picture, entitled "Any Wife." The film was directed by Herbert Brenon, who stands in the very front rank in his field.

The story of "Any Wife" was written by Julia Tolsva. It deals with the case of a woman possessed of a devoted husband and a loving child, and surrounded by every material comfort; yet who surrenders to the spirit of discontent because she feels her life is too "humdrum"—lacking in social spice. This spirit, ever-increasing, leads her into an unfortunate situation as a result of which her husband casts her off, though she is really innocent.

Despite this apparent tragedy the story has a singularly happy ending, which comes as an absolute surprise.

We are sorry that we had Gloria Swanson in "Under The Lash" booked for only one day, as so many of you were turned away last night, that we could not seat. However she is coming again soon in a far bigger picture "The Gilded Cage" and we will see that you are all given ample opportunity to see her at that time.

Weddings

WACYNSKI-RUDER

Miss Agnes Wacynski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wacynski of Sigel and Henry Ruder of Nekoosa were united in marriage Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at the Catholic Church in Sigel. Rev. Gille of Vesper performed the ceremony. They were attended by Miss Anna Wacynski, sister of the bride and Hattie Diehn of City Point as bridesmaids and by John Wacynski, brother of the bride and Michael Sroda of Stevens Point as groomsmen.

The bride wore a gown of white stain trimmed with lace, and a veil. She carried an arm bouquet of chrysanthemums and ferns. Miss Anna Wacynski wore a pink silk dress with hat to match while Miss Diehn wore white net with hat to match. Both wore bouquets of roses and sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride. The house was prettily decorated with cut flowers. Dinner was served to seventy-five guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruder left on a two weeks honeymoon after which they will go to housekeeping in Nekoosa where the groom is employed.

GARRANT—WALSH

Cards have been received from Mrs Eelina Garrant, of Marinette announcing the marriage of her daughter Selina Marie to Mr. Frank Robert Walsh, Saturday September Thirtieth at Milwaukee Wisconsin. The bride taught the past year at the Howe school, during which time she made many friends in this city who will gladly welcome her return. The groom has been a resident of Wisconsin Rapids for several years. He is manager of the Ahdawagam Paper Co. and is one of the best known young business men of this community. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh left for Grand Rapids Michigan on a wedding trip and on their return will be at the Hotel Witter, until the home on Fourth street south, which they are to occupy, is completed.

THEATRES

PORT EDWARDS AUDITORUIM

The short life of the average play, the passing fame of the average star, has always been the rub of the theatrical business. Each year brings forth its endless crop of "Successes of the century", "hits of the age", biggest sensation in twenty years", and where are they all today? Echo gives no answer, neither does the billboard, the Ouija board or the daily newspaper! Like Shakespeare's poor player, they have "strutted and fretted their hour or two" and then vanished into the great limbo of the forgotten.

When, therefore, a play goes on year after year, showing to bigger and bigger audiences; when its score and songs continue to outsell a dozen times over all the ragtime and jazz, "hits of the age", it is a matter worth special note. We refer to "Robin Hood", written some thirty years ago by Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith, and which Manager May Valentine will present at the Auditorium Monday, October, 9th.

Originally produced by the famous Bostonians, it has been continually before the American public. And today it is still breaking box office records, still selling out on the first day of its seat sale, still bringing laughter and romance and happiness to thousands. "O Promise Me" is the biggest seller of any single musical composition, just as it was the first year of the opera's production.

Advertising is the Sunlight of Business

To all that is healthy and vital in business, it means increased strength and growth; but advertising is a fierce heat which withers and consumes that which is unsound.

A business which is not a good business should not be advertised. A business which would not benefit from widespread appreciation of its ideals had better acquire a new set of ideals.

"THE BACHELOR DADDY"

A Rhymed Review
by Albert Deane

Down where the bandits still flourish,
There where each day marks a raid,
Where nought but a grudge does one nourish;
Yes, that's where the story is laid.
Of a man who was man for he proved it,
Who gave his life to an ideal,
Whose mind was a wall, yet he moved it
In a way that all others must feel.
Five kiddies left parentless, lonely,
Willed on to this bachelor man;
They twined 'round his heart as, well, only
A bunch of cute 'kiddikins' can.
But they were not all that he captured,
Though much of his heart did they fill;
There was something else made him enraptured

Constitutional Amendment

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that at said general election the following proposed amendments to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, which have been approved by two succeeding legislatures and duly published for three months as required by section 1 of article XII of said constitution, will be submitted to vote of the electors in manner provided by law and as directed by chapters 437, 504 and 566, Laws of 1921, to-wit:

[Jt. Res. No. 14. A.]
JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 17 of 1921.

To amend section 5, article I of the constitution, relating to trial of jury.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring. That section 5 of article I of the constitution be amended to read: (Article I) Section 5. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate and shall extend to all cases at law without regard to the amount in controversy; but a jury trial may be waived by the parties in all cases in the manner prescribed by law. Provided, however, that the legislature may, from time to time, by statute provide that a valid verdict, in civil cases, may be based on the votes of a specified number of the jury, not less than fivesixths thereof."

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring. That the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, a verdict to be valid must be based on the votes of all the members of the jury in both civil and criminal cases. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, the legislature will have th power to provide by law that in civil cases (only), the votes of a specified number of the jury less than all, but not less than five-sixth, shall be sufficient for a valid verdict.)

[Jt. Res. No. 39. A.]
JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 36 of 1921

To amend section 4 of article VI of the constitution, relating to county officers.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919 an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houss, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring. That section 4 of article VI of the constitution be amended to read: (Article VI) Section 4. Sheriffs, coroners, registers of deeds, district attorneys, and all other county officers except judicial officers, shall be chosen by the electors of the respective counties once in every two years. Sheriffs shall hold no other office and * * * may succeed themselves; they may be required by law to renew their security from time to time, and in default of giving such new security their office shall be deemed vacant; but the county shall never be made responsible for the acts of the sheriff. The governor may remove any officer in this section mentioned, giving to such a copy of the charges against him and an opportunity of being heard in his defense. All vacancies shall be filled by appointment, and the person appointed to fill a vacancy shall hold only for the unexpired portion of the term to which he shall be appointed and until his successor shall be elected and qualified."

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, sheriffs in office are ineligible to hold the office of sheriff for two years next succeeding the termination of their terms. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, sheriffs will be permitted to succeed themselves.

[Jt. Res. No. 16, A.]
JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 37 of 1921

To create section 3b of article XI of the constitution relating to the indebtedness of muncipal corporations.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That there be added to article XI of the constitution a new section to read: (Article XI) Section 3b. Any city, in addition to the indebtedness of five per centum authorized by section 3 of this article may incur an indebtedness not exceeding another five per centum on the value of the taxable property in such city for the purpose of acquiring or constructing street railway properties, or properties for the production, transmission, delivery or furnishing of light, heat, water or power to the public"; now, therefore be it

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, cities and other municipalities are prohibited from becoming indebted in any manner or for any purpose to any amount including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of taxable property therein to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, cities will be authorized to incur an additional indebtedness, not exceeding another five per centum on such value for the purpose of acquiring or constructing the public utilities mentioned in the amendment.)

GIVEN under my hand and official seal at the Court House in the city of Wisconsin Rapids, this 26th day of September, A. D. 1922.

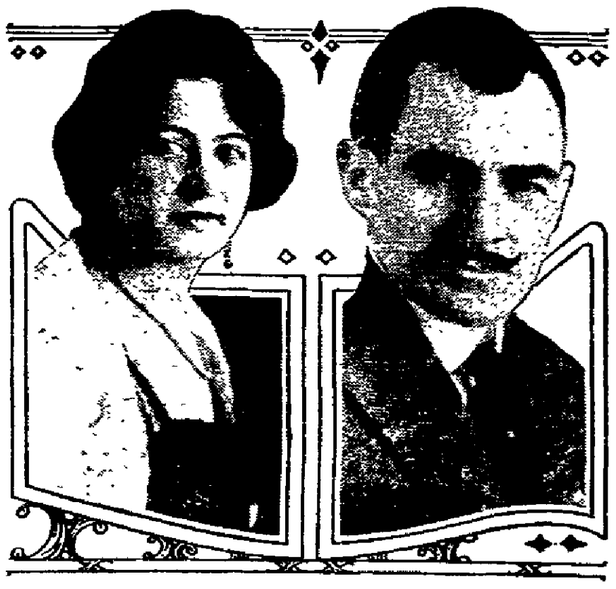
Opera Stars Praise Tanlac

Both Now Enjoy Fine Health



Mme. Rosina Agostini, soprano, and Sig. Guiseppe Agostini, tenor, noted opera stars, who declare their stomach troubles have been completely overcome since taking Tanlac.

"If ever a person felt like they had been made over I am that person thanks to Tanlac," declared Mme. Rosina Agostini, noted leading soprano of the San Carlo Opera Co., residing at Hotel Grenoble New York City.

"I suffered from a nervous rundown condition and got so I dreaded to face my audiences. But as soon as I started taking Tanlac I began to improve, and now I am perfectly normal."

The experience of Mme. Agostini's husband, Sig. Guiseppe Agostini, famouse leading tenor of the same trouble, also shows the value of Tanlac as a tonic and stomach corrective. He said:

"My stomach went back on me and I soon got into pretty bad condition I followed my wife's example and took Tanlac. It helped to fix me up in a short time, and now I always feel fit."

NOTE—The International Proprietaries Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province in Canada. Many of these are from prominent people in this city and section and have been previously published in this paper.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists —Advertisement.

The Cash Value of Tractor Power

"TIME is the essence in good farming", writes Frank I. Mann, one of the most successful farmers in the United States. "To judge the value of a tractor on the farm it must be considered in relation to its ability to do farm work at the time to give most profitable return from the crops grown."

Mr. Mann goes on to show that farm work is subject to continual delays from adverse weather conditions, and the one great advantage of the tractor is in enabling the farmer to handle peak loads on time.

In one case cited, tractor power enabled the farmer to sow a good acreage of spring wheat on March 23, which early seeding gave him a return of 44 bushels per acre, thus illustrating the cash value of tractor power.

A tractor to do its work must have petroleum products.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) takes great pride in the fact that its organization is able to supply the needs of these tractors in 10 Middle Western states with petroleum products of superior quality.

No matter how unexpectedly the farmer's peak load may arrive, he will find that this Company has ever ready at his call such gasoline, kerosene and lubricants as he may need.

Owing to the isolation of many farmers and farming districts, this task of supplying petroleum products at dependable intervals is a big and often an exceedingly difficult one.

Nevertheless, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), inspired by its obligation to the community, has always met rural needs for petroleum in a big way. The Company constantly is extending its operations to provide facilities which under all conditions enable it to meet the demands made upon it, and to guarantee a reliable and sustained service even in periods of stress.

THEATRES

PORT EDWARDS AUDITORIUM

The short life of the average play, the passing fame of the average star, has always been the rub of the theatrical business. Each year brings forth its endless crop of "Successes of the century", "hits of the age", biggest sensation in twenty years", and where are they all today? Echo gives no answer, neither does the billboard, the Ouija board or the daily newspaper! Like Shakespeare's poor player, they have "strutted and fretted their hour or two" and then vanished into the great limbo of the forgotten.

When, therefore, a play goes on year after year, showing to bigger and bigger audiences; when its score and songs continue to outsell a dozen times over all the ragtime and jazz, "hits of the age", it is a matter worth special note. We refer to "Robin Hood", written some thirty years ago by Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith, and which Manager May Valentine will present at the Auditorium Monday, October, 9th.

Originally produced by the famous Bostonians, it has been continually before the American public. And today it is still breaking box office records, still selling out on the first day of its seat sale, still bringing laughter and romance and happiness to thousands. "O Promise Me" is the biggest seller of any single musical composition, just as it was the first year of the opera's production.

Advertising is the Sunlight of Business

To all that is healthy and vital in business, it means increased strength and growth; but advertising is a fierce heat which withers and consumes that which is unsound.

A business which is not a good business should not be advertised. A business which would not benefit from widespread appreciation of its ideals had better acquire a new set of ideals.

"THE BACHELOR DADDY"

is the picture selected by the St. Katharine's Guild of the Episcopal church to use for a Benefit Entertainment because in tells a real story in a delightful way; is clean and wholesome throughout and the work of Tom Meighan and Leatrice Joy—to say nothing of the five kiddies. Is as fine as any that has ever appeared on the screen.

There will be two complete showings each evening at 7 and 9, and if the reports of the advanced sale are at all correct it will be adviseable to come at one of those hours.

No Matinee on Tuesday.

Night 7 and 9—15c and 30c

Through Thrills to Happiness!

Five cute kiddies orphaned by a bandit's bullet—and when a big, handsome bachelor attempted to father the brood, they led him a merry chase straight to a great love and happiness. Leatrice Joy in the cast.

From the novel by Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap"
Directed by Alfred E. Green Scenario by Olga Printzlau

"THE BACHELOR DADDY"

A Rhymed Review
by Albert Deane

Down where the bandits still flourish,
There where each day marks a raid,
Where nought but a grudge does one nourish;
Yes, that's where the story is laid.
Of a man who was man for he proved it,
Who gave his life to an ideal,
Whose mind was a wall, yet he moved it
In a way that all others must feel.
Five kiddies left parentless, lonely,
Willed on to this bachelor man;
They twined 'round his heart as, well, only
A bunch of cute 'kiddikins' can.
But they were not all that he captured,
Though much of his heart did they fill;
There was something else made him enraptured
—Just guess what it was if you will.

LOCAL GRIDDERS LOSE TO WAUSAU BY 13-6 SCORE

TITLE HOPES OF LINCOLN HIGH ATHLETES SUFFER SET-BACK; POINT AND MARSHFIELD TEAMS WIN

The failure of the Wisconsin Rapids team to get its forward pass attack to working effectively, and lack of the needed push to advance the ball when a few more yards meant a touchdown spelled defeat for the local high school football eleven at the hands of Wausau Saturday afternoon, 13 to 6.

With the ball in its possession in enemy territory a large share of the time, and able apparently to gain almost at will in midfield, the Lincoln high school athletes appeared to have a decided edge on the visitors. Fumbles, bungled passes, and lack of the final impetus to send the ball over the goal line turned a possible victory into defeat.

Feel Loss of Nason

The lack of Nason in the back field was severely felt, and will probably handi-cap the team for another week, as there seems to be no prospect of his injured knee being in shape for work in time for the Merrill game next Saturday.

The defeat at the hands of Wausau was a severe blow to the championship hopes of the Lincoln high school eleven. There is still plenty of possibility however, that Wausau may be defeated by Antigo, Stevens Point, or other conference teams, while if the local gridders hit their stride by next week they may well finish the season without another loss, and so earn at least a tie in the conference rating.

Wisconsin Rapids' only score in the game Saturday came in the first quarter when Nobles intercepted a forward pass and ran 70 yards, through a good share of the Wausau team, for a touchdown. The attempt at the point after touchdown failed.

Intercept Pass

Wausau's first touchdown, also on an intercepted pass, came in the second quarter, and a successful drop kick for the extra point made the score 7 to 6 in favor of the visitors.

The teams battled back and forth, throughout the third and most of the final period, the advantage generally lying with the locals. Three times during the game Wisconsin Rapids got the ball to the five yard line or beyond but each time failed to put it across. In the last quarter the locals tried desperately to score via the forward pass route, and with only a few minutes left to play, Wausau intercepted a pass and brought the ball within striking distance. A line buck pushed it over for the final score.

Wisconsin Rapids opened the game with practically the same lineup which faced Tomah, with the exception of Nason, incapacitated by injuries. The lineup: Schmalzer, Searles, Beadle lg; Gibson, Kornus, rg; Arpin, lt; LeRoux, rt; Prechette, re; Mellicke, Greiber, le; Hougen, q; Gee, Nason, E. LeRoux, lh; Nobles, rh; Laramie, f.

Stevens Point, Oct. 2—Without any appreciable opposition, the Stevens Point High school football team on Saturday afternoon defeated the Mosinee High school eleven by a score of 27 to 0.

Coach Carl G. Olsson's first team ripped through the Mosinee line in the first period for two touchdowns, and with the score 13 to 0 the regulars were taken off the field and the second and third string players inserted into the fracas for Stevens Point.

One more touchdown and a try-for-goal was made in the second quarter and with the ball in Stevens Point's possession on the one-foot line, the whistle was blown for the termination of the first half. Score, 20 to 0.

The second and third string Point men failed to score in the third quarter, ragged playing and much fumbling in the back field preventing, until, with only a few more minutes left to play, end runs and forward passes put the ball over the line.

Marshfield 20; Stanley 0

Marshfield, Wis.—The Marshfield high school football team defeated Stanley 20 to 0 in a stiffy contested battle on the Stanley gridiron Friday afternoon. The superior weight of the Stanley eleven mad h going hard for Marshfild in the first part of the game, but timely use of the forward pass, and occasional fumbles by Stanley, turned the tide in favor of Marshfield.

The first score came in the first quarter on a forward pass to Quinn, followed by a short run by Esser for a touchdown. The point after touchdown was made via the forward pass route. In the second half Esser recovered a fumble and carried it over the line, and a few minutes later Feilenz got away for the final score.

Marshfield meets Stevens Point next Saturday in one of the major encounters of the conference season.

SISLER BATTING CHAMP OF BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES

ST. LOUIS STAR NOW HITTING .417; HORNSBY TOPS NATIONAL AND ALSO LEADS IN HOME RUNS

(By Associated Press)

Chicago—Down comes the curtain on major league season Sunday with George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns batting champion of the American league, Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals champion of the National league and Hornsby also the conqueror of the mighty "Babe" Ruth for the 1922 honors in home run hitting.

Sisler, acclaimed the most valuable player in the American league, and the slugging Hornsby both will finish the season with an average above the coveted .400 mark, as the latest figures show Sisler hitting .417, and Hornsby whaling away to the tune of .400. With the final games scheduled for Sunday, these St. Louis rivals will have an opportunity to better these figures, which include games of Wednesday.

Won Honors Before

This is the third time Hornsby has been crowned king of batters and the second for Sisler, Hornsby captured the honors in 1920 and 1921. Sisler's last appearance on the throne was in 1920 when he finished with a mark of .407.

The honor of batting above the .400 mark has been held by only three players in the American league, and two of them are still playing. They are Ty Cobb, Sisler's rival, and Sisler himself. Cobb held the honors in 1911 and 1912 when he headed the procession with marks of .420 and .410 respectively. The only other player to attain this honor was Napoleon Lajoie, who, while a member of the Athletics, in 1901 batted .405.

Cobb Going Strong

Cobb's average this year undoubtedly will be the best he has attained since he hit .410, ten years ago. He is batting .398 today. Although he led the league six times after that his average never was above .390. Previous to 1911, Cobb led the league for four years, but his best mark during that period was .385.

Harry Heilmann of the Tigers, who last season nosed out Cobb for the batting honors, is in fourth place today with an average of .357, compared with his .394 last season. Tris Speaker manager of the Indians, who led in 1916 when he finished with a mark of .386,—is in third place with an average of .378.

In addition to being the champion batter, Sisler also is the king of base stealers. He has pilferred forty-nine bases, and his closest rival is Kenneth Williams, a teammate, who has stolen thirty-four.

Williams, who started with a blaze of glory to capture the American League home run honors has clouted out thirty-nine four-baggers, with Tillie Walker of the Athletics the runner up with thirty-six. Ruth, who last season bagged fifty-nine, is in third place, with thirty-five.

Other leading batters for 100 or more games: Speaker, Cleveland 378; Heilmann, Detroit .357; Wililams, St. Louis 332; Ed. Miller, Philadelphia 331; Tobin, St. Louis 328; Schang, New York 327; Veach, Detroit 326; Pipp, New York 326; Bassler, Detroit 325.

Hornsby Home Run Star

Hornsby, the St. Louis star with forty-two home runs, is the leading home run hitter of the majors after one of the most exciting races in the history of the game. Kenneth Williams of the Browns, is a close second, and Ruth trailing in fourth place.

Hornsby, in addition to his new laurels, is in line to accomplish something among the National League batters which has not been done in the past twenty-three years—finish the season with a mark of .400 or better.

Mrs Ivy Giberson, charged with the murder of her husband, who was shot to death while asleep in his home, Lakehurst, N. J., last August, is to go on trial today.

Constitutional Amendment

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that at said general election the following proposed amendments to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, which have been approved by two succeeding legislatures and duly published for three months as required by section 1 of article XII of said constitution, will be submitted to vote of the electors in manner provided by law and as directed by chapters 437, 504 and 566, Laws of 1921, to-wit:

[Jt. Res. No. 14, A.]

JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 17 of 1921.

To amend section 5, article I of the constitution, relating to trial of jury.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That section 5 of article I of the constitution be amended to read: (Article I) Section 5. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate and shall extend to all cases at law without regard to the amount in controversy; but a jury trial may be waived by the parties in all cases in the manner prescribed by law. Provided, however, that the legislature may, from time to time, by statute provide that a valid verdict, in civil cases, may be based on the votes of a specified number of the jury, not less than fivesixths thereof."

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring. That the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, a verdict to be valid must be based on the votes of all the members of the jury in both civil and criminal cases. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, the legislature will have th powr to provide by law that in civil cases (only), the votes of a specified number of the jury less than all, but not less than five-sixth, shall be sufficient for a valid verdict.)

[Jt. Res. No. 39, A.]

JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 36 of 1921

To amend section 4 of article VI of the constitution, relating to county officers.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919 an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houss, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That section 4 of article VI of the constitution be amended to read: (Article VI) Section 4. Sheriffs, coroners, registers of deeds, district attorneys, and all other county officers except judicial officers, shall be chosen by the electors of the respective counties once in every two years. Sheriffs shall hold no other office and * * * may succeed themselves; they may be required by law to renew their security from time to time, and in default of giving such new security their office shall be deemed vacant; but the county shall never be made responsible for the acts of the sheriff. The governor may remove any officer in this section mentioned, giving to such a copy of the charges against him and an opportunity of being heard in his defense. All vacancies shall be filled by appointment, and the person appointed to fill a vacancy shall hold only for the unexpired portion of the term to which he shall be appointed and until his successor shall be elected and qualified."

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, sheriffs in office are ineligible to hold the office of sheriff for two years next succeeding the termination of their terms. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, sheriffs will be permitted to succeed themselves.

[Jt. Res. No. 16, A.]

JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 37 of 1921

To create section 3b of article XI of the constitution relating to the indebtedness of muncipal corporations.

WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That there be added to article XI of the constitution a new section to read: (Article XI) Section 3b. Any city, in addition to the indebtedness of five per centum authorized by section 3 of this article may incur an indebtedness not exceeding another five per centum on the value of the taxable property in such city for the purpose of acquiring or constructing street railway properties, or properties for the production, transmission, delivery or furnishing of light, heat, water or power to the public"; now, therefore be it

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

NOTE—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, cities and other municipalities are prohibited from becoming indebted in any manner or for any purpose to any amount including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of taxable property therein to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, cities will be authorized to incur an additional indebtedness, not exceeding another five per centum on such value for the purpose of acquiring or constructing the public utilities mentioned in the amendment.)

GIVEN under my hand and official seal at the Court House in the city of Wisconsin Rapids, this 26th day of September, A. D. 1922.

Opera Stars Praise Tanlac

Both Now Enjoy Fine Health

Mme. Rosina Agostini, soprano, and Sig. Guiseppe Agostini, tenor, noted opera stars, who declare their stomach troubles have been completely overcome since taking Tanlac.

"If ever a person felt like they had been made over I am that person thanks to Tanlac," declared Mme. Rosina Agostini, noted leading soprano of the San Carlo Opera Co., residing at Hotel Grenoble New York City.

"I suffered from a nervous rundown condition and got so I dreaded to face my audiences. But as soon as I started taking Tanlac I began to improve, and now I am perfectly normal."

The experience of Mme. Agostini's husband, Sig. Guiseppe Agostini, famouse leading tenor of the same trouble, also shows the value of Tanlac as a tonic and stomach corrective. He said:

"My stomach went back on me and I soon got into pretty bad condition I followed my wife's example and took Tanlac. It helped to fix me up in a short time, and now I always feel fit."

NOTE—The International Proprietaries Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province in Canada. Many of these are from prominent people in this city and section and have been previously published in this paper.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists

The Cash Value of Tractor Power

"TIME is the essence in good farming", writes Frank I. Mann, one of the most successful farmers in the United States. "To judge the value of a tractor on the farm it must be considered in relation to its ability to do farm work at the time to give most profitable return from the crops grown."

Mr. Mann goes on to show that farm work is subject to continual delays from adverse weather conditions, and the one great advantage of the tractor is in enabling the farmer to handle peak loads on time.

In one case cited, tractor power enabled the farmer to sow a good acreage of spring wheat on March 23, which early seeding gave him a return of 44 bushels per acre, thus illustrating the cash value of tractor power.

A tractor to do its work must have petroleum products.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) takes great pride in the fact that its organization is able to supply the needs of these tractors in 10 Middle Western states with petroleum products of superior quality.

No matter how unexpectedly the farmer's peak load may arrive, he will find that this Company has ever ready at his call such gasoline, kerosene and lubricants as he may need.

Owing to the isolation of many farmers and farming districts, this task of supplying petroleum products at dependable intervals is a big and often an exceedingly difficult one.

Nevertheless, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), inspired by its obligation to the community, has always met rural needs for petroleum in a big way. The Company constantly is extending its operations to provide facilities which under all conditions enable it to meet the demands made upon it, and to guarantee a reliable and sustained service even in periods of stress.

LOCAL GRIDDERS LOSE TO WAUSAU BY 13-6 SCORE

TITLE HOPES OF LINCOLN HIGH ATHLETES SUFFER SET-BACK; POINT AND MARSHFIELD TEAMS WIN

The failure of the Wisconsin Rapids team to get its forward pass attack to working effectively, and lack of the needed push to advance the ball when a few more yards meant a touchdown spelled defeat for the local high school football eleven at the hands of Wausau Saturday afternoon, 13 to 6.

With the ball in its possession in enemy territory a large share of the time, and able apparently to gain almost at will in midfield, the Lincoln high school athletes appeared to have a decided edge on the visitors. Fumbles, bungled passes, and lack of the final impetus to send the ball over the goal line turned a possible victory into defeat.

Feel Loss of Nason

The lack of Nason in the back field was severely felt, and will probably handi-cap the team for another week, as there seems to be no prospect of his injured knee being in shape for work in time for the Merrill game next Saturday.

The defeat at the hands of Wausau was a severe blow to the championship hopes of the Lincoln high school eleven. There is still plenty of possibility however, that Wausau may be defeated by Antigo, Stevens Point, or other conference teams, while if the local gridders hit their stride by next week they may well finish the season without another loss, and so earn at least a tie in the conference rating.

Wisconsin Rapids' only score in the game Saturday came in the first quarter when Nobles intercepted a forward pass and ran 70 yards, through a good share of the Wausau team, for a touchdown. The attempt at the point after touchdown failed.

Intercept Pass

Wausau's first touchdown, also on an intercepted pass, came in the second quarter, and a successful drop kick for the extra point made the score 7 to 6 in favor of the visitors.

The teams battled back and forth, throughout the third and most of the final period, the advantage generally lying with the locals. Three times during the game Wisconsin Rapids got the ball to the five yard line or beyond but each time failed to put it across. In the last quarter the locals tried desperately to score via the forward pass route, and with only a few minutes left to play, Wausau intercepted a pass and brought the ball within striking distance. A line buck pushed it over for the final score.

Wisconsin Rapids opened the game with practically the same lineup which faced Tomah, with the exception of Nason, incapacitated by injuries. The lineup: Schmaltz, le; Searles, Beadle lg; Gibson, Roenins, rg; Arpin, lt; LeRoux, rt; Frechette, re; Meilicke, Greiber, le; Hougen, q; Gee, Nason, E. LeRoux, lh; Nobles, rh; Laramie, f.

Stevens Point, Oct. 2—Without any appreciable opposition, the Stevens Point High school football team on Saturday afternoon defeated the Mosinee High school eleven by a score of 27 to 0.

Coach Carl G. Olsson's first team ripped through the Mosinee line in the first period for two touchdowns, and with the score 13 to 0 the regulars were taken off the field and the second and third string players inserted into the fracas for Stevens Point.

One more touchdown and a try-for-goal was made in the second quarter and with the ball in Stevens Point's possession on the one-foot line, the whistle was blown for the termination of the first half. Score, 20 to 0.

The second and third string Point men failed to score in the third quarter, ragged playing and much fumbling in the back field preventing, until, with only a few more minutes left to play, end runs and forward passes put the ball over the line.

Marshfield 20; Stanley 0

Marshfield, Wis.—The Marshfield high school football team defeated Stanley 20 to 0 in a stifly contested battle on the Stanley gridiron Friday afternoon. The superior weight of the Stanley eleven mad h going hard for Marshfild in the first part of the game, but timely use of the forward pass, and occasional fumbles by Stanley, turned the tide in favor of Marshfield.

The first score came in the first quarter on a forward pass to Quinn, followed by a short run by Esser for a touchdown. The point after touchdown was made via the forward pass route. In the second half Esser recovered a fumble and carried it over the line, and a few minutes later Feilenz got away for the final score.

Marshfield meets Stevens Point next Saturday in one of the major encounters of the conference season.

SISLER BATTING CHAMP OF BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES

ST. LOUIS STAR NOW HITTING 417; HORNSBY TOPS NATIONAL AND ALSO LEADS IN HOME RUNS

(By Associated Press)

Chicago—Down comes the curtain on major league season Sunday with George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns batting champion of the American league, Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals champion of the National league and Hornsby also the conqueror of the mighty "Babe" Ruth for the 1922 honors in home run hitting.

Sisler, acclaimed the most valuable player in the American league, and the slugging Hornsby both will finish the season with an average above the coveted .400 mark, as the latest figures show Sisler hitting .417, and Hornsby whaling away to the tune of .400. With the final games scheduled for Sunday, these St. Louis rivals will have an opportunity to better these figures, which include games of Wednesday.

Won Honors Before

This is the third time Hornsby has been crowned king of batters and the second for Sisler. Hornsby captured the honors in 1920 and 1921. Sisler's last appearance on the throne was in 1920 when he finished with a mark of .407.

The honor of batting above the 400 mark has been held by only three players in the American league, and two of them are still playing. They are Ty Cobb, Sisler's rival, and Sisler himself. Cobb held the honors in 1911 and 1912 when he headed the procession with marks of .420 and .410 respectively. The only other player to attain this honor was Napoleon Lajoie, who, while a member of the Athletics, in 1901 batted .405.

Cobb Going Strong

Cobb's average this year undoubtedly will be the best he has attained since he hit .410, ten years ago. He is batting .398 today. Although he led the league six times after that his average never was above .390. Previous to 1911, Cobb led the league for four years, but his best mark during that period was .385.

Harry Heilmann of the Tigers, who last season nosed out Cobb for the batting honors, is in fourth place today with an average of .357, compared with his .394 last season. Tris Speaker manager of the Indians, who led in 1916 when he finished with a mark of .386,—is in third place with an average of .378.

In addition to being the champion batter, Sisler also is the king of base stealers. He has pilfered forty-nine bases, and his closest rival is Kenneth Williams, a teammate, who has stolen thirty-four.

Williams, who started with a blaze of glory to capture the American League home run honors has clouted out thirty-nine four-baggers, with Tillie Walker of the Athletics the runner up with thirty-six. Ruth, who last season bagged fifty-nine, is in third place, with thirty-five.

Other leading batters for 100 or more games: Speaker, Cleveland 378; Heilmann, Detroit .357; Williams, St. Louis 332; Ed. Miller, Philadelphia 331; Tobin, St. Louis 328; Schang, New York 327; Veach, Detroit 326; Pipp, New York 326; Bassler, Detroit 326.

Hornsby Home Run Star

Hornsby, the St. Louis star with forty-two home runs, is the leading home run hitter of the majors after one of the most exciting races in the history of the game. Kenneth Williams of the Browns, is a close second, and Ruth trailing in fourth place.

Hornsby, in addition to his new laurels, is in line to accomplish something among the National League batters which has not been done in the past twenty-three years—finish the season with a mark of .400 or better.

Mrs Ivy Giberson, charged with the murder of her husband, who was shot to death while asleep in his home, Lakehurst, N. J., last August, is to go on trial today.
